Thought for the Day by Sarah Teversham

In the readings for today we have the Magnificat, Mary praising God, and Ephesians telling people to be wise, make the most of their time and also be thankful to God.

I was fortunate to have wise parents who taught me to try to be positive even when stressful and things occurred. They also taught me to be an active member of society, as they were by example, but also to lead a balanced life between activity and rest.

I have a lot to be thankful to God for. I do not live in a war zone and have not had to flee my home country to venture into the unknown. I am not homeless. Do not need to use a food bank to survive. I have wonderful friends and family who support each other. I am not housebound and can still get out and about.

Let us all then be thankful for what we have and remember those less fortunate.
